

Horticulture Working Group Chair: Iain Brown

The horticulture working group chair is Iain Brown: a strawberry, broccoli, potato, and cereal producer from the East Neuk of Fife. Iain is a member of both the Berry Gardens and East of Scotland Growers cooperatives. His business employs around 160 seasonal workers annually, so his business is on the Brexit front line, and he is acutely aware of the pressing political challenges of trade and migration resulting from the UK's exit from the European Union. Many producers represented by the horticulture working group are already feeling the impacts of the EU exit, and Iain will work with the crops policy manager to engage with the Scottish and UK governments to highlight issues, provide evidence, and lobby for the changes NFUS members need.
